Deer Resistant Plants

The following plants have acquired a reputation for being ignored by deer; unfortunately, the deer have not read this list. In order to survive they must adapt to changing food sources and eat whatever is available. Consequently, the level of vulnerability of any particular plant varies according to the whims or desperation of the deer. After the lush abundance of spring has withered in the wild, your yard can become a buffet for Bambi unless it is inhabited with unpalatable plants.

-  Least likely to be eaten.
- * May be sampled but should survive (unless the entire plant is the size of a single serving.)
- ? These have appeared on other deer resistant lists but have been eaten by the local deer anyway. You might try these plants tucked in amongst the less tempting morsels in your garden.
